DORTMUND, Germany, Oct. 22.—Throughout the night, by the light of blustery furnaces, French troops were on the march out of Dortmund.

The morning found evacuation of this important center in full swing; cannon and field pieces rumbling through the cobbled streets, while curious German citizens peered from behind window blinds and many could scarcely receive cheers.

Dortmund, the first large Ruhr center to be evacuated, will be cleared of enemy troops by Thursday morning.

Wesel, another city of the occupied area, seized by the French and Belgians nearly two years ago, also was evacuated today. There the burgomaster, with difficulty, repressed the joy of the inhabitants, fearful lest some untoward demonstration might cause a change of mind on the part of the withdrawing troops.

Throughout the Ruhr the departure of the blue-clad soldiers who have been billeted in towns and cities and become familiar sights since earlier 1923, was hailed as the dawn of a new era.

The French have ordered all occupied mines, custom offices and the like returned to their owners by October 28.

The scenes here this morning were of martial but friendly activity. Groups of guns in the square and soldiers in full marching equipment, sitting on trucks, awaiting the bugle call to fall in for the march to the railroad, was the sight that greeted early risers. The troops were fat and well fed and there were not a few German maidens with tearful faces and here and there an affectionate farewell.

Airplane Wrecks; Pilot Everly Will Not Make Repairs

Special to The Courier.
SMITHFIELD, Oct. 22.—The airplane which was being given away at McClellandstown by J. W. Everly, have come to an end. Residents of the town were given a thrill Sunday afternoon when the machine, which was owned and piloted by Mr. Everly, crashed while he was attempting to take off with a passenger.

Robert Lisco was in the machine. The aviator had just made a successful landing and was preparing to resume a flight. The plane, however, was unmanageable and was damaged when it crashed. The pilot sustained a sprained wrist and the passenger suffered injuries to the hands. The wreck is the second to the plane and Mr. Everly does not contemplate repairing it.

Police Helpless in Jewel Robbery When Victim Disappears

By United Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Puzzled over the disappearance of Mrs. Helen Heyworth, the late victim of New York's jewel robbery, police today were helpless in the prosecution of four men whose arrest they believed may lead to clues in the "Dix" King and Louis Lawson murder.

The quartet was arrested early yesterday in possession of a short rifle. A diamond and sapphire ring was found on one of the men, which police say has been identified by a friend of Mrs. Heyworth as one stolen from her early Monday morning.

But the strange disappearance of Mrs. Heyworth, who police have learned, was one of a flotilla of "Dixie" Don" Collins, famous International crook, has provoked police from chasing the four men with anything stronger than suspicion of robbery.

Chinese Magistrate

Sells Opium as Cure
Nanking, China.—The magistrate of Ching-an-ho recently confiscated large stores of opium in his bailiwick, and his praises were sung far and wide by the people of the province. They had been compelled by force to cultivate the poppy and subjected to heavy fines and taxation and they believed the magistrate was seeking their welfare.

Subsequently the magistrate put on the market some pills which he advertised as a sure cure for the opium habit. For this he received rewards and his pill business prospered.

Then it was discovered that all the dues collected for trafficking in opium went into the magistrate's pocket and that he used the confiscated drugs to make his "antidote" pills. As punishment, when the authorities learned of his double dealing, he was warned to take his pills off the market.

San Sebastian, Spain is one of nature's beauty spots. It is sheltered by two mountains which rise up abruptly behind the little town with its quaint little harbor. Fresh and clean like a well tended child, the town gathers round the narrow streets with the Iglesia Santa Clara stretching across the harbor entrance, a refuge from the boisterous Atlantic. The promenade is fringed with young trees whose foliage is soft as swans down. The air is mild, soft as the fresh water so delightful for a shave. San Sebastian may not be Spain though it has its Plaza de Toros, but it is a very pleasant port of entry.

CIVIL WAR RAID RELICS ARE DUG UP IN KANSAS

Workmen Uncover Cellar of Lawrenceville Saloon Looted by Bushwhackers.

Lawrence, Kan.—Relics of the Quantrell raid at Lawrence on Aug. 21, 1863 when 170 men of the 10th Kansas were massacred and the city pillaged and burned were unearthed when excavations were made in cellars of the new building of the Lawrence Journal.

Investigation showed that the excavator had invaded the old cellar of a saloon run by T. P. Schaefer at the time of the raid.

Bushwhacker fled from the saloon when the guerrilla band descended to town but he was caught with four other Lawrence citizens and Quantrell shot them all to death.

As Schaefer took flight, he tossed a bag of money into a rifle box whence members of his family later retrieved it.

The Quantrell raid at Lawrence was the most ambitious and the most disastrous of a series of expeditions by the southern chief headed.

Riding into the sleeping town at day break, the invading band took the city completely by surprise and almost before the defenders could recover from their daze more than 100 men were lying dead or wounded and mangled in the streets. Shops were pillaged and then burned.

When Quantrell and his followers finally disappeared, about 9 a. m. they vanished as quickly as they had come.

High School Prepares to Meet McKeesport Here on Saturday; Hoping to Win

Boys Down to Hard Practice to Perfect Offensive Shown Last Week.

INTERFERENCE IMPROVES

The Connellsville High School football team, although defeated at Latrobe Saturday, is sticking down to hard work this week with hopefulness of finally winning a game Saturday when it meets the McKeesport High outfit. For the first time all year the Cokers were able to dash an offensive last Saturday at three quarters through Latrobe.

On the other hand the team was unable to capitalize the gains, frequent fumbles being costly. The brilliant feature, however, is the fact that the team really did make plus first downs against Latrobe.

Now that the Cokers have found out they can easily carry the ball, they may be able to work something. Cheered by this fact the team will take the field Saturday against McKeesport, anything but a beaten combination.

DUNBAR TWP. HAS TOUGH FOE IN THE REDSTONE ELEVEN

Dunbar Township will have its hands full Saturday when the local gridironers journey to Republic to meet the strong Redstone eleven. Conched by Earl R. Zook, former star end for Bethany, the Republic lads have been trouncing the snappy outfit and the outfit is considered as one of the strongest teams in the county. Having won the county championship last year, the Redstone lads are a strong contender for the laurels again this year. The champs have been tearing up things near the county seat and are confident of continuing their present pace.

The Red and Black contingent went through a strenuous workout last evening. Encouraged by the victory last Saturday, the local team will go into the melee with more confidence in its ability. The grid master is keeping the school at work at all times, not letting up with the hard drill.

This will be Dunbar's fifth game of the season. Out of its four starts the locals have been able to win only the last encounter.

URGES MORE USE OF SPOON AND MASHIE

St. Andrews Official Wants Them Restored to Place of Importance.

Judging from the remarks of Henry Gullon, secretary of the Royal and Ancient Golf club, manager of the British Walker Cup team, golfers on the other side of the water are not nearly as perturbed over the question of a ball change as they are here in America.

While speaking unofficially, Mr. Gullon said that in his opinion the reason for the constant lowering of the scores is not due so much to the ball as to the fact that golfers are getting even and not losing.

All over, says Mr. Gullon, golfers would like to have some of the old clubs such as the spoon and the mashie, return to the place of importance which they formerly held in the game, but in his opinion the new ball with which the U. S. G. A. is experimenting will hardly succeed in doing so. It is his opinion that club officials who are inclined to complain when some of the stars perform feats that make the purists silly are making a mountain out of a molehill.

"It is no disgrace to a course to have some golfers such as 'Vulie' come along and register a 65 or a 63 when the par is 71 or 72," said Mr. Gullon. "Such things are likely to happen no matter how far the ball travels. Rather should we pay tribute to the golfers who are able to do such wonderful things. At St. Andrews we have been taking the par two strokes one way of compensating for the scoring."

Good Control Is Fixed

Habit of G. Alexander

Grover Cleveland Alexander, of the Chicago Nationals, started pitching at Galveston, Ill., in 1909. He is thirty-seven years old, but Alex apparently is the type that improves with age.

His masterful control was displayed during the training trip in Texas. Facing the Western Fair, he used tongue, eye, lip, and one hand to two batters in four innings, did not touch a base, and pitched twenty balls. Then he refuted to let some of his pupils do "incentive work."

One of Alexander's feats not in the record book was pitching 51 to 23 consecutive innings without a base on balls—and then Tilla Walker walked. This record was made in 1923, when Alex was only one year younger than he is now.

Hill Kliefel, once his bitter mate, says Alexander's reputation as the "king of control" is due entirely to his wonderful condition at all times.

Kindness Made No Kind

Peter, the two and a half-ton rhinoceros of the Zoological gardens, in London is an uncooperative savage and unretractable. Church, his keeper, had many a narrow squeak. Peter would charge hourly at a set of his bars with a thud.

People who say you can do anything by kindness did not know Peter's ways.

He had been very "philhalely" of late. Chest trouble, Church said it was.
You might give him a couple of bucketsfuls of cough mixture and it made no difference. Anæsthetic and heroic lozenges only caused him to wheeze the more.

about the slender outline of his quest which came partly from self

What Your American Red Cross Does

Carries on Work of Vital Importance to American People

THE AMERICAN RED CROSS, since the war, has been offered boundless opportunities for service. With thousands of disabled ex-service men still in hospitals, with disasters occurring almost weekly, with hundreds of thousands dying yearly through preventable disease, through accident, through lack of knowledge of the simplest rules of hygiene and health, the need is greater than ever before.

The Red Cross meets this need through a group of unified services, to carry on which it is chartered by Congress. This peace-time work is in particular, less interesting generally, except to those who directly benefit by it. For it is no easy matter to interest a healthy person in health. Yet it is a work that is of vital importance to the American people. America could no more do without the Red Cross in peace than it could have done without it in war.

With Service and Ex-Service Men

Service to the disabled veterans of the World War continues as the first obligation of the Red Cross. Since the Armistice it has expended $50,000,000 for services to these men and to men of the Army and Navy. It is now assisting more than 100,000 disabled veterans and their families each month. To 180,000 soldiers, sailors and marines on active duty it is giving the same help it gave during the war. There are today more than twenty-five hundred Red Cross Chapters, in all parts of the country, that are carrying on soldier work.

With the Army and Navy, the Red Cross has continued to act as a medium of communication between the enlisted man and his family at home. Field Directors are maintained at all stations, camps, and hospitals, supplementing the welfare of the men, providing entertainment and recreation for convalescents, and keeping the families advised of their condition. Occupational therapy has been continued at nine Naval hospitals.

The Nursing Service

At the request of the Government the Red Cross holds the reserve out of which are recruited the Army and Navy Nursing Corps, both in time of war and in some sudden emergency of peace. During the war it assembled, equipped and assigned 19,877 nurses to active service with our Armies and Navy. Today there are 41,000 qualified nurses enrolled in this reserve.

Disaster Relief

The far-reaching organization of the Red Cross, with thousands of chapters and branches, forming a close network over the entire country, is well fitted to bring prompt aid when the lightning stroke of disaster flashes down upon peaceful community, killing hundreds, rendering thousands homeless and destitute. Into such a

Nutrition Service

The Nutrition Service of the Red Cross meets the modern demand for a proper understanding of food values and their relation to community health. During the year 2,700 dietitians have been enrolled to help carry on the nutrition program.

The outstanding accomplishment of the Nutrition Service this year has been the further development of the improvement of methods, material and organization necessary for establishing and carrying on nutrition programs under a trained worker. This worker is with each Red Cross Chapter for a three or four month period during which time she organizes a Nutrition committee of chapter men and women, conducts classes employees alone. Last year 14,500 persons completed two courses, and 135,000 were reached with demonstrations by the First Aid Car.

Red Cross experience shows that the accident rate among men in industry who have had First Aid instruction is 75 per cent less than among the untrained. Red Cross Chapters throughout the country are prepared to assist groups of people anywhere in taking the course.

An organization devoted to life-saving at the various waterfronts and fields was inaugurated in 1914. This is the American Red Cross Life Saving Corps, which has trained more than 100,000 men, women and youths to rescue and revive the drowning. These volunteers are instructed and organized into corps by the expert life-savers on the Red Cross staff.

The Chapters
During the year volunteers have produced 150,000 garments, 1,000,000 surgical dressings and 87,000 pieces of laundry. They have made 15,000 motor calls and fed 23,000 persons in canteenservice. In 500 communities the Red Cross Chapter is the only family welfare agency.

Junior Red Cross
Organized in 1917 the American Junior Red Cross has today 5,612,745 children enrolled in public, private and parochial schools. Born of the movement to provide suitable channels of American Red Cross relief work for American children, it is now in close touch with the children of forty other countries, creating bonds of mutual friendship and understanding.

When the Armistice was signed the Red Cross mustered these children into an army of peace, whose ideal should be one of service to others. Today juniors are identified with their seniors in health class instruction, in disaster relief work, in welfare and in other service.

The Juniors pay no membership fee, but every child must have earned the right to wear the Junior Occupational therapy has been continued at nine Naval hospitals.

The Nursing Service

At the request of the Government the Red Cross holds the reserve out of which are recruited the Army and Navy Nursing Corps, both in time of war and in some sudden emergency of peace. During the war it assembled, equipped and assigned 19,877 nurses to active service with our Armies and Navy. Today there are 41,000 qualified nurses enrolled in this reserve.

Disaster Relief

The far-reaching organization of the Red Cross, with thousands of chapters and branches, forming a close network over the entire country, is well fitted to bring prompt aid when the lightning stroke of disaster flashes down upon peaceful community, killing hundreds, rendering thousands homeless and destitute. Into such a area of despair and hopelessness the Red Cross brings food and clothing, medicine, tents for shelter, blankets and all kinds of supplies. Equipped with trained workers, with stores of relief supplies located at strategic points throughout the country, the resources of the entire organization can be brought to bear within a few hours upon the area requiring relief.

Nor do the workers stop until the work is finished. In the tornado which devastated Lorain, Ohio, last June, more than 7,000 persons were left homeless. The Red Cross is still working for the rehabilitation of these people.

During the first half of 1924 the Red Cross gave assistance in more disasters than during any similar period in its history. This year the flood in the Ohio brought an immediate response from the Red Cross treasury. Disaster Relief has been and must continue to be one of the most important of Red Cross activities.

Public Health Nursing

The Red Cross has appointed public health nurses in many communities which desired such service.

She tells expectant mothers how to take care of themselves, so that the mortality from child birth may be reduced. Black and wind-swept mountain plateaus, and lonely rural settlements throughout the United States and her possessions.

Home Hygiene courses in the Black

The country in Home Hygiene offers the Sick which the Red Cross offers to women and girls throughout the country has two aims. The first is to teach the elementary principles of nursing, so that in war or pestilence, when there is a shortage of professional nurses, there may be a sufficient supply of volunteers available. The second is to assist in checking mortality by the intelligent care of babies and children, and to further adult health and efficiency by depriving the war and more than 2,000,000 were so seriously injured that each lost over four weeks' time or was permanently maimed. These striking statistics call for a wise and far-reaching remedy. The Red Cross can apply the remedy

by instruction in First Aid and Accident prevention.

During the past ten years First Aid representatives of the Red Cross have covered nearly the entire country—traveling altogether something over half a million miles. During that time 500,000 persons have had First Aid instruction among railroad employees alone. Last year 14,500 persons completed two courses, and 135,000 were reached with demonstrations by the First Aid Car.

Red Cross experience shows that the accident rate among men in industry who have had First Aid instruction is 75 per cent less than among the untrained. Red Cross Chapters throughout the country are prepared to assist groups of people anywhere in taking the course.

An organization devoted to life-saving at the various waterfronts and fields was inaugurated in 1914. This is the American Red Cross Life Saving Corps, which has trained more than 100,000 men, women and youths to rescue and revive the drowning. These volunteers are instructed and organized into corps by the expert life-savers on the Red Cross staff.

The Chapters
During the year volunteers have produced 150,000 garments, 1,000,000 surgical dressings and 87,000 pieces of laundry. They have made 15,000 motor calls and fed 23,000 persons in canteenservice. In 500 communities the Red Cross Chapter is the only family welfare agency.

Organized in 1917 the American Junior Red Cross has today 5,612,745 children enrolled in public, private and parochial schools.

Born of the movement to provide suitable channels of American Red Cross relief work for American children, it is now in close touch with the children of forty other countries, creating bonds of mutual friendship and understanding.

When the Armistice was signed the Red Cross mustered these children into an army of peace, whose ideal should be one of service to others. Today juniors are identified with their seniors in health class instruction, in disaster relief work, in welfare and in other service.

The Juniors pay no membership fee, but every child must have earned the right to wear the Junior people. America could no more do without the Red Cross in peace than it could have done without it in war.

With Service and Ex-Service Men

Service to the disabled veterans of the World War continues as the first obligation of the Red Cross. Since the Armistice it has expended $50,000,000 for services to these men and to men of the Army and Navy. It is now assisting more than 100,000 disabled veterans and their families each month. To 180,000 soldiers, sailors and marines on active duty it is giving the same help it gave during the war. There are today more than twenty-five hundred Red Cross Chapters, in all parts of the country, that are carrying on soldier work.

With the Army and Navy, the Red Cross has continued to act as a medium of communication between the enlisted man and his family at home. Field Directors are maintained at all stations, camps, and hospitals, supplementing the welfare of the men, providing entertainment and recreation for convalescents, and keeping the families advised of their condition. Occupational therapy has been continued at nine Naval hospitals.

"THE PRICE SHE PAID"—With Alma Rubens in the leading role, is the feature picture today and tomorrow at the Paramount.

One good reason why no one can afford to miss seeing this picture, "The Price She Paid," is the opportunity motion picture devotees have in seeing the scintillating and brilliant personality of Alma Rubens in the most suitable role of her career.

The fact is that Miss Rubens' varied charms "wave" a romantic sheen in whatever scene she appears, and the illusions of sheer beauty, perfect harmony and vividness in portrayal become indelibly stamped on the mind of the beholder. In creating the dramatic role of the woman who, by dint of circumstances, is compelled to pay the price by way of a broken heart, she indeed rises to the height of her brilliant ability.

In this vivid, dramatic novel, which was written by the late David Graham Phillips, one can observe her personality literally melting into every scene and leaving the impression of rare perfection. It is seldom that one has the good fortune of seeing such an harmonious combination of story and acting.

Miss Rubens plays the part of a refined young lady of good education who, after her father's death is practically auctioned off in marriage to the highest bidder. Her husband turns out to be insipid and cowardly, and because of his unkempt nature she steals away soon after their honeymoon and sails for Italy.

Friday and Saturday, "The Verdict of the Desert" will be shown.

The Soisson

"FLAMING YOUTH"—Showing today at the Soisson, is one of the best attractions seen at this theatre in months. Colleen Moore, who portrays a modern "Sapphoish" hoyden, is seen in one of the best roles of her career. Others who appear in the cast are Milton Sills, Elliot Dexter and Myrtle Stedman.

"Flaming Youth" paints a true picture of the age in which we are now living. The recklessness of youth, the mad-cap craving for pleasure, the abandonment of the conventions and the psychology of the modern young girl who "takes her fun where she finds it"—all these are dramatically drawn in this startling picture.

The story for the most part deals with the youngest of these daughters of household where indulgence and pleasure is the chief consideration. We follow this daughter through a series of love affairs and through them we get a glimpse into the philosophy of the modern young girl who deals in red and white kisses, who loves "petting" and who pines herself in being a popular "necker."

This girl, brought up in a home where indulgence is taken but lightly, gets into a real love with the name of a girl that she would pay to change her clothes until she meets one of her mother's former sweethearts. Thursday, Friday and Saturday, "Lovers' Lane" will be shown.

The Orpheum

"THE BREAKING POINT," an enthralling combination of society, love and drama, provides splendid entertainment today at the Orpheum. Nita Naldi, Patsy Ruth Miller and Matt Moore are seen in the leading roles.

Moore plays the role of a reckless millionaire, Judson Clark, who is desperately in love with a popular

"Yes, it is," said M'sungo, and added: "Sort of knockout to faith, isn't it? But even crosses have character. There are certain crossings swarming with them where they are known to be friendly and where no one has ever been attacked."

By this time the finished speaking the natives had pulled out a wide, clumsy spear and M'sungo nodded to Andrew to sit down on the slippery landing chute and climb in. She was worried as to how Marguerite would be pleased when, for her delight, the blacks picked him up bodily and deposited him in the center of the leafy craft. He did not defer to more than half open his eyes.

"Oh," he exulted, "there's no great hurry. We aren't after antelope, you know. Three out of every five elephants shot are killed in the noon hour. If the one we are after is traveling, we'll never, never see him, for he'll think nothing of a nifty miles as a day's stroll. If he has feeding, and that's the probability in this case, we'll come up with him at the heat of the day under a big tree dozing and finally turning himself with his ears."

The country across the river was a contrast to anything Andrew had seen; it was what M'sungo called mangy; totally in spots and breaking out in others in the thickets or oases of thick brush. Further upstream was a forest of high straight pines much higher than the tenups, but following his towering growth suddenly fell to a low level of bush that cut a gray line along the horizon. The band of gray was broken here and there by black dots of a tree.

M'sungo followed the direction of Andrew's eyes. "That long gray patch," he said, "that's elephant bush, but Lord knows when we'll get there."

The wounded men led them upstream and soon they were in the deep shade of the high forest, but no for long. In ten minutes they traversed it, for it was nothing but a tongue, a long narrow extending from elephant bush to river. So only had they left its shelter when the three hunters used it with them. M'sungo, Andrew sprang forward.

The rocky ground was well-marked with great, irregular, jagged stones, the smallest a ton in circumference, the largest three. "I'm afraid," Marguerite, "inadvertently M'sungo in excitement, 'all trashed.' He stood quiet still, his eyes traveling rapidly over a wide radius, pausing suddenly when the tracker thoughtfully touched a gun-blade with his toe or another boy suddenly measured a spear with his feet placed one ahead of the other, looked up hurriedly and retired in confusion at the kindly snore on the faces of the hunters.

"Why are you waiting?" asked Andrew impatiently.

M'sungo flushed a look at her, "Waiting?" he whispered. "We're not waiting. We're here, according to his lights, is hunting. You saw that shooey gunner, now, with a spear and then withdraw with a lame, lop look. He thought he had spotted a mambu. He has made himself ridiculous for a year. Tonight you'll see the camp telling the joke on him over and over again. But the tracker touches a blade of grass bent one way with his toe and presently you'll see him with a twig broken in the opposite direction. There he goes now, looks as if he were day-dreaming, doesn't he?"

Andrew nodded.

"Well, he isn't," continued M'sungo. "By now he has run the whole story. He knows how many enemies made his mambu a ton and how many were using. He knows when they came and when they went. He could tell in his story with a dozen indicia, each one complete in itself, such as where a younger slipped fell, squandered and got spanked by his mother. But such runnings of details impress themselves only on his subconscient mind, in reality his whole attention is fixed on the mambu change. By the season of the year he knows that this herd is not traveling alone. The track of the males is nearby. The track of the males is nearby. If we didn't have the three old hunters we would go up the bank of the river until we struck it, but we don't have to because they found it by chance this morning at the first streak of dawn."

While he talked, the tracker studied the three wounded sat about, nothing to say. Now, at last and from fatigue, they stopped, prodding unceasingly along the margin of the big trees. Presently they traversed to the left and plunged through undergrowth to a well-marked path. In the dim dusk of that runway Andrew saw the silent monster spoor that the old blacks had drawn with his finger on the ground beside his breakfast mabie.

Another hunt was ended. The tracker squatted by one spear and then another. He held up three fingers. "All males," said M'sungo. "The tracker nodded. "Blow ones?" said M'sungo, with that half-smile of exultation. The boy grimed.

M'sungo touched the edge of the mabie spear with his toe. "Yeah?"

"State," he intoned, punctuated the tracker, and rolled his eyes up into the trees. "He says it's a 'go'!" whispered M'sungo and promptly went into a

Notes for Women

A new antiseptic has been discovered that is four times as powerful as Carbolic Acid. It is much more powerful than chloroform of mercury. Yet it is so mild that one can drink it and so mild in its action that it is a healthful wash for the most delicate membrane. Chemists say it will take the place of harsh poisonous germ killers. By getting a 60 cent bottle of Kolene at Clinton Drug Co., or any good druggist women can learn much of personal hygiene that will be of benefit to them. —Advertisement.

More Early Risers

A young couple who had just begun to keep house were not financially able to buy a clock; thus determined the hour for rising in winter by watching for a light in the window of a neighboring farmhouse. One night on watching and seeing the light, they rose, did the morning chores and ate their breakfast. Still daylight held off, and so they sat down to wait. To their astonishment, while they were looking out the window, they saw the light in the neighboring farmhouse go out. Their neighbors were just going to bed! —Youth's Companion.

He Smelled the Prey.

masticated leaf, here some message upon the leaf reading of which hung the delicate balance of success or failure. Slower and slower fell the pace and the measured, rapid, delicate walk became and seemed to grow and spread and throb till it hung in the air like some stifling alpengeist mist. Beneath it the heart beat with an irregular rat-tat-tat and breath came in hurried gasps. In spite of the men before her, Andrew felt alone amidst a sea of unseen but hovering perils. She looked over her shoulder. Only Butthib was in sight behind her, tense, one foot in air, waiting for her to take her next step before he pounced on her. His naked body, exposed to the merciless sun, glistened with sweat.

Andrew's shoulders ached from having his arms before his face to ward off the intense polyphemus-like heat and breathing that would impede the way but inevitably pained at her touch. Her tongue was parched, all her clothing had laid hands on her every motion with a clammy grip and her body quivered on the thin edge of exhaustion, but still, hanging on, her eyes above dark shadows casting aged glances at M'sungo, if only he would reach for the big gun! If only he would stop to rest for even a fleeting instant.

Add Amazing Endurance to Unequalled Results

The success of the Chrysler Six, which has made it literally the talk of the country, is well founded.

It is not due to some single engineering innovation of a spectacular nature. It is a success that involves every phase of performance and ownership.

It is based on such fundamentals as power production and application, weight distribution, space engineering and the essentials of economy.

It is a success that has completely changed prevailing ideas of automotive design deemed essential for finer motoring. It has swept into the discard the cumbersome and the wasteful.

To cap the climax come such records as the recent performance at Fresno, Calif., when a stock model covered 1,000 continuous miles in 1007 minutes, 54 seconds. To, unprecedented results is now added positive proof of amazing stamina and dogged endurance.

CHRYSLER SIX

You Can Drive It All Day Without Fatigue

What the group of Maxwell-Chrysler engineers responsible for the good Maxwell of today have accomplished is just this—

They have raised four-cylinder motoring to a plane of fineness and comfort heretofore assumed to be impossible in a car of this type.

They have accomplished it not alone through the insistence on fine manufacturing and the use of first grade materials. They have also employed engineering innovations that practically eliminate vibration and otherwise perfect performance and riding quality.

You will especially appreciate these higher qualities when you make a country run of considerable distance.

Where you used to return from such a trip thoroughly weary, now with the good Maxwell you can drive all day without fatigue.

And as for dependable, care-free, economical motoring, the good Maxwell still leads all cars at anywhere near its price.

Business Women Are Rallying To Support Of Republican Candidates; Organize For Active Campaign Work

Business women are coming into their own in political work. From coast to coast they are rallying to the support of the Republican party and already their influence is being felt. State directors are being appointed who are asked to stand up and speak for women in their states, sending them into Republican Business Women's Clubs. According to Miss Edith Anderson, national director of business and professional women for the Republican Women's Committee, a powerful organization of business women is being built up state by state which will carry on between campaigns always ready to actively participate in local and national politics. Women in every state that is receiving a ready response from business women everywhere. They say that Coolidge has a treasury of the business and professional principles strong appeal to this group of business women. Because they are business women, they have been quite surprised and appreciate that President Coolidge has administered the affairs of the government on a strictly nonpartisan basis. These women know well that it is in their interest and they like to feel that national income is administered according to the simplest business principles.

Pictured above are three business women leaders in their communities who are active supporters of the Republican party. Mrs. Marguerite A. Bendell of Cleveland, O., Mrs. Alice A. Alney of Tacoma, Wash., and Miss Isabelle Hinkle of San Antonio, Tex., are receiving a ready response from business women everywhere. They say that Coolidge has a treasury of the business and professional principles

SERGEANT HAS ATTRACTIVE JOB

Nothing at All to Do and Has Private To Do It for Him.

New London, Conn.—When it comes to sitting pretty on the top of the world and letting your feet hang down, Sergeant Joseph Eros, United States army, stands in a class by himself. He has nothing whatever to do and an enlisted man to do for him. That situation, as any buck private would testify, is as close to heaven as any sergeant has a right to hope to get.

Sergeant Eros commands the garrison of Fort Mansfield, a sea coast fortification a dozen miles east of here at Watch Hill, R. I. Furthermore, he and his lone private Harry Dell constitute the whole garrison. It is doubtful whether any other sergeant anywhere is as well fared as Sergeant Eros. To plant the sole of his garrison shoes on his 96 acres of reservation—49 acres for each foot to shelter his hen he has no less than 20 buildings, including a decent quarters barracks and hospital. He has an extensive system of water works and sewage, a network of telephone and a telephone line of granitework, with along the ocean front. He has a large garage ground to march on, an elaborate though dismantled system of electric lights and a perfect maze of buried telephone and telegraph cables.

Battery of Eight Inch Guns

To defend himself, his private and his country, he has three batteries of eight inch guns, two emplacements of rapid fire, a mine control station and emplacements for incendiary searchlights.

Of course he also has certain responsibilities. As a pole found of authority in the fort he is not merely commander, but also personnel officer, range officer, supplyment officer, mine field officer, battery commander, signal officer, ordnance officer, observer, plotter and gun pointer, unless he let Harry Dell do the plotting. But Harry himself would be fairly busy as gun-pit detail, azimuth setting, elevation, powder setting, detail, track detail, sponge detail and range and detection recorder, besides serving as orderly, running the searchlights and answering the telephone.

In these piping times of peace, of course, Sergeant Eros duties are a little less onerous, though at that he naturally holds a long list of the special ratings peculiar to his highly technical branch of the service. He is, for instance, the new sergeant major of Fort Mansfield and its civilian sergeant, ordnance and quartermaster and commissary sergeant and signal sergeant, mine sergeant and chief mine planter.

Has Time for Family

When he isn't thinking about his wife or another of three jobs or inspecting Harry Dell or drilling Harry in company formation or mauling the rounds of Harry when Harry is standing sentry, Sergeant Eros relaxes in the bosom of his family. For he is a married man, with his wife and little boy installed in one of the residences in officers' row, which suits them 'tainer.

And he gets a fair amount of relaxation, for Fort Mansfield, a quarter of a century ago an up-to-date fortification defending the eastern entrance to Long Island sound, is now practically abandoned though a recent survey has been carried out by engineers who suggested the reservation would make an ideal aviation station. It consists of a crescent-shaped peninsula, some three miles long and a few hundred feet wide which juts out into the sea as a continuation of the Watch Hill bathing beach. Before the fort was built the long sandy strip was known as Napatree Point. Skirted on the south by Fisher's Island Sound and on the north by Little Narragansett Bay, the peninsula forms a natural harbor. It is a natural harbor, but for fishing boats, with full protection from the tempestuous seas that sometimes roll in from the Atlantic there. And the land strip is wide enough and smooth enough to accommodate planes with wheeled landing gear.

Like Deserted Village

In its present condition Fort Mansfield makes one think of a deserted village. But the government engineers had an enormous job on their hands when they converted the extensive strip of sand dunes into what was then a barren, desolate, rocky waste. Work on it began in 1898, and a garrison first occupied the place in 1901. When it was abandoned in 1911 three batteries of guns and equipment had been built and armed in the fort with two eight inch guns. The last company to occupy the post was the Eighth Field Artillery, with a strength of 101 men and 20 officers.

If the forecast indicates weather good enough for church, but not for golf or motoring, publicity through the newspapers is curtailed and no attempt is made to increase the attendance, as the church will be crowded to capacity without such efforts.

But if stormy, or very bad weather is in prospect, special announcements of service and attractive musical programs are made in the newspapers and every means is used to arouse interest.

Obliging

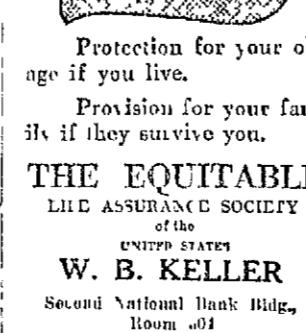

(He (standing in front of the mirror)—Violeta looks so nice. Others—Nothing.

He—Oh at right I'll move over so you can see better.

Sister—I don't know you had her that heavily dressed!
